

Upon clicking the PDF link to obtain the article, the user is prompted with the Terms & Conditions overlay and must click Proceed to PDF in order to begin the download (note: this is a one time click through per session)

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the JSTOR search results for the query "kittens". The page includes navigation links, a search bar, and a list of search results. A red circle highlights the first result, "Cortical Plasticity in Monocularly Deprived Immobilized Kittens Depends on Eye Movement", and its associated PDF link. A "JSTOR Terms and Conditions" overlay is displayed over the PDF link, containing the text: "Your use of the JSTOR archive indicates your acceptance of JSTOR's Terms and Conditions. JSTOR's Terms and Conditions provides, in part, that unless you have obtained prior permission, you may not download an entire issue of a journal or multiple copies of articles, and you may use content in the JSTOR archive only for your personal, non-commercial use." Below the text is a "Proceed to PDF" link. To the right of the search results, there is a legend for content access: a green checkmark for "You have access to this content", a green checkmark with a slash for "You have access to part of this content", a yellow checkmark with a slash for "Full text on external site", and a yellow star for "Citation access - see access options". On the right side of the page, there are options to "SAVE THIS SEARCH", "Alert Me About New Articles" (set to Weekly), and "RSS feed".